To all that affect the famous exercise of Archerie frequenting Finsbury fields.

SHooting in the long bow being of it selfe very laudable, and our English nation in al ages surpassing therein all others, yea neither the Getes, Scythes, Parthians, Sarmatians, Armiaspes, famous for that quality, nor any other people could become equall with English Archers: and yet (a matter to be lamented) this laudable exercise of late hath become cold in most places of this land, famous London retaining the most ardent desire to main- taine the same, as appeareth by the daily concourse of Citizens, to their great commendations, in diuers companies in the conuenient fields about the City, but most specially in that choice place Finsburie, most specially garnished with many beautifull Markes in this booke Alphabetically mentioned, whereby the benefactors therin shall haue perpetuall memory recorded by the titles of their seuerall erections.

And for that euery hand ought to bring some portion of helpe towards the preseruation and increase of so commendable actinity I haue reprinted, enlarged, and amended this little worke, the rather ther becauſe in theſe warlike times the vſe of the bow, as formerly, ſo it may againe be neceſſary and very ſerviceable to the ſtate, wiſhing it may worke a continuing in the old, and a growing good-will in ſuch beginners as by perufing the ſame haue a deſire to come to the knowledge of the markes, and thereby to good ſhooting.

Rules touching the vſe of the Treatiſe.

1 Firſt note, that ſundry Marks haue two or three words for their names. Looke for the marke alwayes in the firſt word: as, in the Kings Mace, looke not for Mace, but but for Kings: also the House of Lancaster, looke for House, not for Lancaster, and so in the rest.

2 Note further that the first number sheweth the scores, the second the yards. You must shoot long ayme because this is set down by measure of the line.

3 Againe note, that the markes are to be taken all going into the fields: and if you be cõming homeward, looke for the marke you shoot at, and not for the mark you stand at. And the markes are placed frõ the left hand to the right, leaving out none from 9. score to 18. or 19. score. And when a marke is found along a banke, you must alwaies looke for the marke from the West toward the East.

4 Also for the aide of yong shooters there is in the end of the booke a Table of the names of all the markes, with direction in what page to finde them, for the ease of those that are vnacquainted with the names of the markes.

And for the better aduersisement of such as are not acquainted with the order of the game and custome of the field, whereby often arise controuersies, and diuerse times grow rash and vnadvised oathes, to the derogation of Gods glory, here are set downe such orders as are fittest to be obserued in this exercise.

1 First, for the finding of your marke it must be within euerie mans reach. Also the precise naming of your marke preuenteth much cauill.

2 Secondly for whites you may haue as many as you will, so they be all forwards: and if you shoote at any loose white, if it be striken out of sight, it is no marke.

3 Thirdly, for the highest of stakes, although the wood be aboue the pin, you are to measure at the pin if there be any, because it is put in for the same purpose.

4 Fourthly, if you find a bush or a black, whatsoeuer you find highest in it, being within the compasse of the marke, you are to take it for the height.

5 Fifth-

5 Fifthly, for all trees you are to measure at foot and pole, except in the naming of it you say, At the naile in such a tree, or hole in such a tree, or being a tree of so small height, that you may reach the top of it with halfe your bow, then you may take the highest.

6 Sixtly, if in measuring of a shoot, by hast the marke is stirred, he is to lose the shoot that measureth it.

7 Seuenthly, when you come to the marke and claime two, and the contrary sides draw their arrowes, and when your mate commeth he saith, his would win too, you are to winn no more then you claimed.

8 Lastly,

8 Eightly, if you name one marke and shoot at another, you are to lose your shoot, and they are to follow at the marke named.

9 Lastly, if your arrow breake, you may measure to the nearest peece that hath wood and head, or wood and feather.
